

Resources to Inspire Guide | Casey Life Skills

This guide provides the learner and life skill instructor (practitioner, parent or other caregiver) a place to start when creating a learning plan. It identifies the skill areas and corresponding goals and expectations to help young people and practitioners build effective plans. It lists suggestions for resources to help create activities and exercises that can be used to teach the learning goals in group, individual, or self-instruction formats.

Note to Young People: A lot of the resources listed here are for you and some are for professionals and parents. We encourage you to use the guide to find websites that teach life skills using fun games and activities, find current topics, fun facts and advice to help you learn life skills. If you open a website that looks confusing or difficult, talk to your case manager, parent or caregiver to get the information you need. There is also a page on this website just for you with links to some pretty cool websites.

About the resources we suggest:

Many resources in this guide are found on the Internet. They are good examples of what you can find by typing your topic—for example, transitional housing, leases—into a search engine such as www.google.com. We encourage you and the young people you work with to continue to search the Internet for other resources. And when you get to any Web site explore the site. Most offer a range of information and links to other Web sites.

Many, however, are commercial sites that, in addition to free information and tools, promote commercial services and products. Others, such as roommate matching services, may also request personal information or link young people to strangers. Please make sure that young people are Internet savvy before suggesting that they use such sites. They need to be aware that suggestions to visit sites for free information are not endorsements for products and services sold there. And, more importantly, they need to know how to use caution in divulging personal information and in using adequate safeguards when making personal contacts through the Internet.
